Though Arthur moved to Texas shortly after selling the house, when he died he was buried in Clarendon Hills Cemetery in Westmont, Il. He died of Aplastic Anemia. This is a rare blood disorder where bone marrow stops making enough new blood cells and platelets due to unexplained damage to stem cells. Stem cell transplants are the only known cure for this affliction, in 1978 science had not figured this out yet. His death certificate also mentions that he was retired from general fireproofing, this change of profession must have happened after the 1950 census.

John L. Lehmann/ Lehmann family

Though the deeds are in the name of John L. Lehmann, it seems that William P. Lehmann was actually the resident of the home at this time.

John L. Lehmann is shown as living there only for a few of the following years. There is also inconsistency in last name spelling.
